Practice

I am a civil litigation practitioner specialising in personal injury work. However early experience in criminal work has stood me in good stead as an advocate. My personal injury practice covers the usual range of employer's liability, road traffic, trips and slips and local authority work along with industrial deafness and disease litigation, holiday claims, consumer law, and a particular interest in sports injuries. I represent both Claimants and Defendants on a roughly equal basis. I am regularly instructed to appear at Inquests from straightforward road traffic accidents to poisonings at work.

Outside the personal injury sphere I have experience in a range of commercial disputes and professional negligence actions.

Personal

Merseyside born and bred I am a Liverpool F.C. supporter whose patience has been sorely tested in recent times. I also enjoy music and motor racing.
