Overview

Lawrence has been a property litigator for the whole of his professional career. He acts for companies, individuals, office holders and public bodies before courts and tribunals of all levels in England and Wales. Lawrence has also been authorised to appear in the courts of the Isle of Man. In addition to court work he has an extensive advisory practice and he regularly represents clients in mediation.

Lawrence has acted in disputes in all areas of real property law including development agreements, boundaries, easements, prescriptive rights, adverse possession, restrictive covenants, specific performance, rectification, trespass and rights to light.

His landlord and tenant experience includes disputes about leasehold covenants, forfeiture and relief from forfeiture, dilapidations, possession claims, termination and renewal of business tenancies, break clauses, options, telecommunications leases and the Electronic Communications Code.

He acts for many institutional landlords in claims before the First Tier Tribunal and the Upper Tribunal relating to the recovery of service charges under long residential leases and other claims before the Tribunal such as applications for enfranchisement or the Right to Manage. He also acts for tenants in such claims.

In addition to his core property practice, Lawrence has acted in relation to a wide range of other associated areas, including planning, rating, judicial review, compulsory purchase, blight claims and water law.

The Legal 500 says Lawrence is “knowledgeable, very good with clients, in depth knowledge of all instructed matters, very good as consultant, very organised and works in a speedy manner.”
