Family

Caroline specialises in matrimonial finance and private law children disputes. Within financial provision proceedings, Caroline has a breadth of experience of not only high value claims involving company valuations, analysis of business accounts, inherited wealth, foreign property, farming cases, contributions arguments, pension issues, but also lower value claims which bring to bear their own complexities.

In her work involving children, Caroline regularly deals with residence and contact applications and all the sensitive and complex issues relating thereto.

Caroline has a reputation of having a very personable approach with clients and adopts a constructive approach to litigation. She is valued by solicitors for her high level of client care and negotiating skills. Caroline prides herself on dealing with issues in a sensitive manner whilst adopting a practical and realistic approach. She will fight hard for her clients in every instruction.
